Dear Dr. Zimmerman,

I would like to take this opportunity to convey my gratitude for the exceptional contribution and effort you made to the C4ISR On-The-Move 2006 Capstone Experiment. Your efforts were instrumental in the planning, preparation, execution, and overall success of the event. This year's experiment brought together several years of examining FCS-like and emerging C4ISR technologies into a true system of systems experimentation event. Emerging results and outcomes briefed to Army Senior Leadership were well received.

In identifying science and technology and product acceleration opportunities, you were challenged to address many complex technical and programmatic issues. The expertise you provided to this effort was invaluable, and a key factor to its successful outcome. Your contribution to the experiment speaks highly of your selfless commitment to the United States Army.

Sincerely,

Gary P. Martin
